Mr. Harry Price is one of the foremost figures in the field of psychical research and this work is already well-known to the wireless public for his notable broadcasts of certain chapters and extracts. Mr. Price has actively interested himself in the subject for the last 30 years, and in 1925 he founded the National Laboratory of Psychical Research (of which he was Director), which, in 1934, was taken over by the University of London Council for Psychical Investigation, of which he is Honorary Secretary. Both bodies have been responsible for many important experiments and demonstrations including the remarkable Fire-Walking tests near London in the late summer of 1935. Mr. Price has collected the results of all his investigations that are important from a scientific or popular point of view, as well as others that demonstrate pseudo-psychic phenomena. Many curious experiences have come his way in England and on the Continent, and his book brings us into the excitement of the proceedings, whether he has chanced upon a 'ghost' in the Unter den Linden, a Poltergeist in South London, or is supervising a test of alleged eyeless-sight before the University of London Council.

It was Harry Price who brought the Austrian medium, Rudi Schneider, to England in 1929, and he gives a detailed account of the last phase of this remarkable mediumship. There are chapters on attempts to communicate with Mars by psychic means, 'Pale Black Magic,' stage telepathy and vaudeville 'phenomena,' the Indian Rope Trick, a talking mongoose, curious claims to mediumship, etc. Not the least interesting section in the book are his chapters on How to Test a Medium, a subject never before treated in a purely scientific manner, and The Secrets of Spirit Photography.

This is a book not of idle speculation, but the result of scientific research that absorbs one's interest as the tales of Edgar Allan Poe, and does for psychics what Fabre did for insectology. The work is fully annotated and documented.
